A READING • Read the text.

When Mia joined her school's climbing club in September, she was frightened of heights. Her friend Oliver convinced her to try the indoor wall. At first, Mia could not climb more than two metres. However, the coach showed her how to use the safety equipment and asked her to practise twice a week. Three months later, Mia climbed the highest wall in the sports centre. She says that climbing has made her more patient and confident. Last Saturday, the club organised an outdoor event, but heavy rain forced everyone to stay inside. Mia was disappointed, yet she enjoyed teaching the younger students some easy techniques. Next year, she hopes to take part in a regional competition.
